Museum on wheels spotlights military

A museum of military tradition and achievement, the Armed Forces Bicentennial Caravan, wheeled into Liberty Park Tuesday, it's four 18-wheel rigs loaded down with memorabilia, stirring slide shows and other tributes to a proud national tradition.

The Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines each had a truck trailer of their own, painted white with single horizontal stripes of red and blue. The quartet of displays differed in format but not in theme—each is designed to convey unabashed pride in purpose and accomplishments.

The Air Force show centered around a synchronized slide show depicting the evolution of flight, from the aspirations of the ancient Greeks to the accomplishment of Wilbur and Orville Wright and the advent of manned space flight. The show moved gracefully from peace-time Kitty Hawk to war-time Kaiser-fighting, with Charles Lindbergh's triumph and Gen. Billy Mitchell's court martial depicted in-between. The post-World War II era was vividly reflected from the development of the B-52 bomber to the all-Air Force Apollo astronaut team of Scott, Warden and Irwin.

One of the first displays visible after entering the Navy trailer is a revolving column with photos of "Today's Navy." A few steps west and, suddenly, time is reversed in the form of black-and-white portraits of naval leaders including 19th century Rear Admiral David W. Taylor to modern-day Admiral Hyman Rickover.

GNP growth rate dips in second quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Gross National Product, the broadest measure of the nation's economic well-being, registered a sharp drop in the growth rate during the spring quarter, the government reported today. The drop was attributed primarily to a stabilization of business inventory accumulation.

The Commerce Department said the GNP grew at an annual rate of 4.4 per cent in volume for April through June, compared to a 9.2 per cent annual rate of growth in the year's first quarter.

Despite the decline in the rate of growth, most economists say they feel the drop will be temporary.

The GNP represents the nation's total output of goods and services and is a key determinant of how many new jobs the economy generates as well as the economic status of all Americans.

The Commerce Department said the slower growth rate was accompanied by a quickening of inflation. Prices as measures in the GNP accounts, which include the prices of all goods and services in the economy rather than just consumer prices, were up 5 per cent at an annual rate in the second quarter. The inflation rate in the first quarter was 3 per cent.

A sharp drop in the growth rate had been expected by Ford administration economists for at least a month.

Despite the slower growth rate, the GNP figures contained some encouraging signals. Demand in the economy, or the level of final sales, actually grew at a faster pace — 4.7 per cent at an annual

Raises for city workers contained in new budget

By KIRK WEBER
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Monday night's City Council meeting, expected to be lengthy and possibly bitter because of a threatened strike by some city workers, turned out to be short and free of acrimony, at least in public.

The main item on the agenda was consideration of a 1976-77 operating budget for the city. The council ended up approving a budget allowing $3,924,083 for expenditures from expected revenues of $4,077,818.

That leaves $153,735 in a reserve fund for emergencies and for creation of a capital account.

The council also approved an ordinance lowering the city's property tax levy from $1.60 per $100 assessed valuation to $1.47. That reduction, Mayor Carl Franklin said in his report to the council, was "made possible because of some favorable investments made this past year on our funded account reserves and due to the increase of the assessed valuation of the city."

It was the second year in a row that the council has lowered the property tax levy. Last year the levy was lowered from $1.65 to $1.60.

But it was what wasn't publicly discussed at Monday night's meeting that was surprising — the threatened strike and salary requests by the workers.

City street and alley, sewer, sanitation and cemetery workers voted to strike last week, expressing dissatisfaction with salary adjustments included in the approved budget.

$80 per month raise

The council approved an $80 per month across-the-board increase, as well as adjustments in the schedule for step-raises. Previously, workers received automatic raises (step-raises) every year for the first five years of service, at which time the top base level was reached. The worker then received a one per cent a year longevity raise for 10 years.

Under the plan included in the budget and approved Monday night, workers will receive step-raises every six months, reaching the top base level after two and one-half years. The worker will then receive no automatic raises for another 30 months, after which he again will receive a one per cent a year longevity increase for 10 years.

For instance, a laborer who used to start at a base salary of $448 per month, will now begin at $528. With step-raises of from $8 to $10 every six months, the laborer will earn just over $600 (top base rate) after two and one-half years.

However, the workers were seeking an additional round of step-raises, after the first round, that would have increased salaries in $20 increments until a total raise of $100 was attained after two and one-half years.

That is, the laborer making $600 a month after 30 months, would be earning about $700 after five years.

Settled before meeting

Several city workers were in the audience of about 50 persons Monday night, but the matter was decided before the regular council meeting.

After the regular pre-council meeting, councilmen went into a closed session, reportedly to discuss legal matters. However, Franklin later said the council also discussed the workers' requests and "reached a consensus" that they could not meet the workers terms.

Instead, Franklin proposed the formation of a committee to investigate the matter and recommend possible adjustments in job titles and salaries to provide an incentive for workers to stay on the job and seek more skilled positions.

When the meeting was thrown open to discussion, no one objected to the council's action. Only Stan Gladden, a representative of the International Association of Firefighters, asked the council to "hold open" the question of firemen's salaries until the council and the IAF meet again. The approved budget includes the $80 raise for firemen,

Ford's camp claims total reduced to 11

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's campaign claimed 16 more Republican National Convention delegates today, including two plucked from Ronald Reagan's total in Virginia and seven from Suffolk County, N.Y.

The latest announcement from Ford headquarters came less than 24 hours after the Reagan camp named three new converts from the uncommitted ranks and contended the former California governor would have 1,140 votes on the first ballot.

James Baker, Ford's chief delegate hunter, said the President now has 1,119 of the 1,130 delegates necessary to secure the GOP nomination at Kansas City Aug. 18.

The Associated Press count of legally bound and publicly declared candidates now stands at 1,081 for Ford, 1,023 for Reagan, 154 uncommitted and 1 for Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee.

In addition to the seven New Yorkers, the new Ford claims list five delegates from Virginia and one each from Illinois, Delaware, Louisiana and South Carolina.

Edwin M. Schwenk, Suffolk County GOP chairman, said his group of seven decided to switch to the President last Friday. Earlier, said Schwenk, he had met for about 10 minutes with Ford to discuss the county's need for federal help on a major sewer project.

But Schwenk denied that the sewer project help would be any quid pro quo for the seven votes in Kansas City. "We're just asking fair consideration," he told a news conference at Ford campaign headquarters.

Richard Rosenbaum, the New York state GOP chairman, claimed that of the 154 New York delegates, Ford has 131, Reagan 18 and 5 remain uncommitted.

Baker looking to 1980 race

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., conceding he was running hard for President earlier this year, now feels his national political plans will have to wait until 1980.

Baker has campaigned staunchly for President Ford, but also entertained challenger Ronald Reagan at his East Tennessee home in May. He has been frequently mentioned as a vice presidential candidate.

He will deliver the keynote address to the Republican National Convention in Kansas City and, in Tennessee's sharply divided delegation to the convention, has strong support for the vice presidential nomination.

Baker discounted his own chances for the No. 2 spot on the ticket, however, and in an interview implied he does not expect a convention deadlock might propel him to the fore as a darkhorse presidential candidate.

Panoramic view of Martian landscape . . . moments after Viking I touched down

Mars photos sharp; experiments to begin

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — America's Viking 1 spacecraft landed today on a dusty plain of Mars to search for life on the red planet. In a spectacular space achievement, Viking began sending back razor-sharp photos of the planet's surface.

The pictures arrived dramatically, appearing line-by-line on television monitors after traveling 213 million miles at the speed of light. The failure of two earlier Soviet Mars landing crafts had heightened the tension in the project laboratory.

"The details are just incredible," said Dr. Thomas Mutch, head of the lander imaging team.

"It just couldn't be better," he said as the first picture, a portion of the surface directly under one leg of the lander appeared on television monitors at Jet Propulsion Laboratory. It was of the Chryse Planitia, the Gold Plain of Mars — the smoothest place on a planet marked by volcanic peaks and deep valleys and craters.

Later, the unmanned three-legged lander will make life-detection and soil sampling tests. For more than 100 years scientists have thought Mars might harbor some form of life.

Scientists cheered and hugged each other as the 1,300-pound craft radioed that it touched down on Mars at 4:53 a.m. PDT. The signal took 19 minutes to reach earth. For many, the achievement was a childhood dream come true — a Mars landing.

President Ford telephoned his congratulations to the project headquarters, calling the mission a "wonderful and most remarkable success."

He said, "I think it's amazing that in the span of a single lifetime, the exploration of space has grown from the dreams of very, very few individuals to such a massive cooperative reality."

Science fiction writer Ray Bradbury was at JPL for the touchdown, his dreams racing ahead of the Viking mission.

"I know in the next 20 years we'll have a manned landing on Mars — eventually we'll have colonized and taken over the planet," Bradbury said.

The first picture showed an area of soil strewn with what seemed to be chunks of rock of varying sizes. Mutch said it looked as though some of the rocks had tails of dirt formed by the rushing of strong Martian winds across the surface.

Scientists had expected the landing site, a low plain where streams may once have run, would be covered by a blanket of material deposited by the water. Although the pictures showed a rocky surface, the lander apparently avoided any geologic hazards that project officials had feared might imperil the touchdown.

Damage suit is dismissed

An $8,250 damage suit against M. David Parkhurst, 2503 West Broadway, was dismissed Monday in Circuit Court at the request of the plaintiffs and the defendant.

The suit, filed last September by Danny Lee Collier, 819 East 10th, and Carolyn D. Krause, 518 West Second, stemmed from an Aug. 27, 1975, auto accident.

In that accident, Parkhurst allegedly was driving his car east on 16th Street at Thompson Boulevard and turned in front of the westbound Collier vehicle. Both Collier and Miss Krause received minor injuries in the accident. Parkhurst was issued a summons by police for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Collier was seeking $5,000 for injuries suffered and $750 for damage to his car. Miss Krause was asking $2,500 for injuries she suffered.

The suit was dismissed with prejudice, and at the cost of the defendant.

Trial date awaits man in drug case

Philip B. Sadler, 19, formerly of Warrensburg, was bound over to Circuit Court for trial by Magistrate Judge Hazel Palmer Monday afternoon after he waived his preliminary hearing on felony charges of possession of a controlled substance, LSD.

Sadler and Daniel M. Keeney, 21, Warrensburg, were arrested by Sedalia police on July 17, 1975, on a routine traffic speeding charge. At the time of that arrest they allegedly had marijuana and a quantity of then unidentified pills and capsules in their possession. Keeney was arrested in Warrensburg Nov. 4 on charges of possession of LSD and methamphetamine. He was bound over to Circuit Court for trial on June 2.

Sadler was arrested in Oklahoma April 22 and extradition proceedings were started against him to face charges here. Both are free on $3,500 bond.

Factions announce Beirut buffer zone

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon's warring Christians and Moslems announced an agreement today to establish a buffer zone between their sectors of Beirut. The U.S. Embassy said it would try once more to evacuate Americans and other foreigners from the capital by road.

The embassy did not say when the second evacuation attempt would be made. A previous convoy scheduled for today was canceled because of continued fighting along the route.

Palestinian chief Yasir Arafat also announced he was sending a peace emissary to Damascus "because the Syrian-Palestinian crisis as well as the Lebanese civil war must come to an end."

Christian leaders offered to halt their attack on the Palestinian refugee camp Tal Zaatar in southeast Beirut for five hours Wednesday to allow the Red Cross to evacuate an estimated 1,000 wounded. The Palestinians said privately they did not object to the truce offer but one spokesman said the final decision depends on what happens at a meeting scheduled for later today between leftist chief Kamal Jumblatt and Christian leaders.

A previous attempt to get the wounded out of the camp, which has been under attack for a month, failed when both sides began shooting again before the evacuation could begin.

Arafat held a night-long emergency conference with his allies, the leftist

Lebanese Moslems. He also held his second secret meeting in three days with a delegation from the right-wing Christian Phalange party, which has the largest Christian militia fighting in the 15-month-old war.

Both the joint Palestinian-Moslem command and the Phalange party announced that the meeting resulted in agreement to restore electricity to Beirut and to establish a "free zone" to restore communication between the Moslem and Christian sectors of the city.

The announcement said both sides would withdraw their fighters from the 100-yard-wide no man's land in which U.S. Ambassador Francis E. Meloy Jr., his economic counselor and their Lebanese chauffeur were captured last month prior to their murder.

The zone will be manned within 48 hours of the withdrawal by 1,300 Saudi Arabian and Sudanese troops of the Arab League peacekeeping force who have been standing by at Beirut airport, the announcement said.

Observers believed Arafat's decision indicated he was ready to bow to Syrian President Hafez Assad's demand that he and his leftist Lebanese Moslem allies stop shooting and negotiate a peace settlement satisfactory to Syria.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Embassy postponed indefinitely the evacuation of Americans and other foreigners scheduled for today because of fighting along the route to Damascus.

display include a model of the Bon Homme Richard, the famous ship led by John Paul Jones, the Revolutionary War's most famous—and the Navy's first—major hero. A slide show recounts such naval explorations as Peary's polar expedition at the turn of the century, the historic voyage of the nuclear-powered submarine Nautilus and the exploits of America's first man in space, Navy Commander Alan Shepard.

One key feature of the Marine exhibit was a film depicting the history of the Marine band, called "The President's Own," because it has performed for every American chief executive since John Adams. Surrounding the screen were full-length wall sections on which was printed the original score of "Semper Paratus March," in the hand of its creator, John Phillip Sousa. Sousa led this band for many years.

Historical highlights included a model of a revolutionary War Marine, whose regalia included an authentic 52-button coat complete with leather collar. "We aren't called leathernecks for nothing," smiled the tour guide. "That's where our name came from!"

Various articles from Army archives have been compiled to reflect two centuries of Army fighting, service and scientific and technological advancements. One particularly interesting display was a large map of the United States. By listening to a recorded message, one can follow and acquaint himself with such various 19th century explorations as those made by Lewis and Clark, Zebulon Pike, John C. Fremont and others.

Today, one discovered later in the display, the trans-Mississippi West has been replaced as a location of discovery by, among other sites, the ice caps of Greenland. Other facets of modern-day Army advancements were reflected in the display of an experimental prototype artificial limb which responds to voice commands.

This particular caravan, which will be open from noon to 7 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, is one of four such units crossing the country in connection with the bicentennial. Since it left Dayton, Ohio, on July 4, 1975, this caravan has made about 180 stops in Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, Minnesota and Missouri.

Navy CPO John Fast is commanding officer of the 13-man crew that travels with the unit. Each person, he noted, has a specific responsibility such as mechanics, electronics, painting or driving.

"It's a job to keep these trucks working right all the time and to keep the generators going to provide power for the displays, but it's something we're all proud to do," he said. "It's been interesting being able to cross the country like we have been doing. We're glad to be here to let the people of Sedalia get a look at what we have to show them."

landing footpads. The rivets on the footpad were visible and the footpad cast an oval shadow in the late afternoon sun as it rested on the soil among the rocks, which Mutch described as "a beautiful collection of boulders."

The second picture was to be a panoramic view of the Martian landscape, made by a camera on the lander with the ability to sweep a long path across the horizon.

As the lander's panoramic picture came through, oohs and aahs reverberated through the center.

"I think it's great," said Mission Director Thomas Young, viewing the Martian horizon. "It has exceeded all our expectations. The landing was O.K., there were no problems, and it's as scientifically interesting as we had hoped."

Asked if the panorama shots of the Martian surface revealed the desert scientists had expected, project chief Jim Martin said, "It's certainly very close. We don't see a lot of big rocks. It looks like there might be some hills out there."

The Soviet news agency Tass reported the Viking landing in one paragraph.

Viking 1, the first of two unmanned American spacecraft scheduled to land on Mars this summer, was launched last August 20. It arrived near Mars and went into orbit around the planet — which is about half the size of earth — a month ago.

Viking 2 is an identical lander and is soaring through space and is due to enter Martian orbit August 7.

Coincidentally, the touchdown schedule of the Viking 1 lander was on the seventh anniversary of man's first walk on the moon, Neil Armstrong's and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin's monumental achievement on July 20, 1969.

President Ford took note of the coincidence of the two events Monday, and proclaimed today as Space Exploration Day.

A landing site several hundred kilometers to the southeast of today's landing site — along with a planned July Fourth Bicentennial landing — was rejected by the Viking team as being too hazardous. The newest area, though seemingly much flatter, was not thought to be any less interesting, scientists said.

The most recent pictures from Viking showed the site for the touchdown to be a relatively flat area on the slope of a huge basin called Chryse Planitia. Scientists think some fine material from Martian highlands may have been deposited there.

Under the Viking plan, eight days after landing, a telescoping claw attached to the 1,300-pound lander was scheduled to reach out and scoop a handful of Martian soil, then dump into miniaturized biochemical laboratories to be analyzed for signs of life.

Most scientists think Mars is too dry and barren to support life.

but a tentative meeting date of Aug. 12 was set to discuss the matter.

Budget higher

This year's budget of $4,077,818 is $627,307 more than last year's $3,450,511 budget. Last year, the budget was trimmed by $70,000 from the original proposed figure because of revenue lost when the council voted to reduce the garbage collection fee from $2 to $1.

To help finance the $80 pay raise, the council plans to reinstate the additional dollar fee. In his report Franklin said, "In the past the expense of the sanitation collection has been paid partially from other revenue. With the additional $1, this service will be fully funded by the collection fee. This will enable the city to release other funds to give the city employees a much needed raise."

The council took no action on increasing the fee, which must be done by passage of a new city ordinance. Action on the matter is expected at the next council meeting.

In response to the council's action on salaries, city workers met Tuesday morning to decide whether to carry out the strike threat or not.

After Bill Loughridge, a heavy equipment operator who has served as a mediator in the dispute, explained the council's decision, the workers decided to wait and see what further action is taken by the proposed committee, and the workers returned to work.

Red tape cut

In other business, the council took action to expedite the letting of bids for sewer construction at the Sedalia Industrial Park. In a resolution, which Economic Development Director James Hamm described as "just cutting a lot of red tape," the council agreed to pay the cost of any cost-overruns incurred in development of the park site.

Fourth Ward Democrat David Curry emphasized, and Hamm reiterated Tuesday morning, that no overruns are anticipated, and should any occur the cost would be absorbed in the price charged for land to businesses locating there.

Hamm said there would be "no direct taxpayer liability," but that the federal government requires the guarantee when making the grant for the project. He said passage of the resolution will save two to three weeks in the bid-letting process.

Third Ward Democrat Russell Bellamy was the only member of the council to vote against the resolution.

Rezoning approved

The council also approved a rezoning request for that portion of the park site that is within the city limits. The rezoning from single family (R-1) to heavy industry (M-2) was necessary to attain industrial status for the park, Hamm said.

A rezoning request also was approved for the Boatright building located at the southwest corner of Broadway and Moniteau. It was reported that the change, from non-retail (C-0) to local business (C-1), was necessary because a business had located there that did not fit the C-0 classification.

The council accepted with regrets the resignation of Chester Anderson, chief of the fire department's fire inspection and prevention division.

Anderson's resignation will take effect

Another study cited on canning economics

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Newsfeatures

We received several letters expressing resentment over the savings raised in this column about the savings in money through home gardening and home canning of fruits and vegetables.

Our remarks were anything but personal. They were based on scientific studies by experts in agriculture and home finances.

Today, with so much stress on costs in money and energy, the question persists: were they economical to put up? Perhaps commercially canned fruits and vegetables were not so good in the past. But today they can be excellent.

Here is another scientific comparison between the costs of home canning and commercial products (green beans and tomatoes). It was made at Michigan State University in East Lansing. Two Extension Specialists conducted it for the University's Department of Food Science and Human Nutrition. Here follows a brief summary of the report made by Theodore Wisnietzky, Ph.D., and Jerry N. Cash, Ph.D.

There are inherent uncertainties in the calculation of gardening and canning expenses — particularly gardening costs. Variations in weather conditions constitute the major area of uncertainty, affecting total yield and cost.

Some argue that fertilizer, pesticide, and water are not essential to home gardening, and should be omitted as cost items. But omitting use of them would reduce yields substantially, thereby raising rather than lowering the per bushel cost of growing the commodity, the author says.

Capital costs (tools, equipment, etc.) will not apply at all to some home gardeners and canners. In part to others, and in full to still others. Two sets of values are therefore computed for capital cost items. The higher value was derived by assigning the entire capital cost to the first year's gardening-assuming a 20-year use. The lower figure assumed a 10-year usage of capital items, with costs pro-rated over that period.

The assumption that all of the harvested product will be usable for home canning is open to question, particularly in the case of tomatoes. Much of what is harvested may be in small quantities — too small to be worth bothering with in a home canning operation. That which is not canned but can be used fresh will not materially change the costs computed in this study. However, produce that spoils or is given away cannot be ignored as an additional cost factor which raises the net cost per bushel.

For home canners who buy rather than grow their product for canning, a cost comparison can be made only by use of local prices (farmers market, roadside market, or supermarket), and these will vary greatly from year to year.

She was three months premature and her chances of living were less than one in 10.

Today, a healthy 16 pounds, Kelly Anne has passed her first birthday and keeps up a lively stream of pater. The 18½-inch-tall dimpled charmer stands steadily on chubby legs and crawls as speedily as the next baby into mischief.

The horoscope forecast for the day of her birth was appropriate for her. It read:

"You may have somewhat of a weight problem. You also have a fine sense of humor, you're artistic and more than mildly fond of travel. May should be one of your most important months this year. You are making valuable contacts, especially through friends and social-charity events."

The day following the newborn baby's birth she was traveling by ambulance to McMaster University Medical Center in Hamilton. Following her by car were her parents, Terrence and Marilyn Cahill of Waterloo.

Noting some problems relevant to prematurity and immaturity, her pediatrician, Dr. J.W. Graham of Kitchener, had recommended her transfer to the center's neonatal intensive care unit.

"We never paid much attention to horoscopes, but weight-watching and traveling have been very much a part of our baby's first year," said Mrs. Cahill.

It amused the couple to find the names they had chosen for their daughter "just because we liked them" meant: Kelly — fighter; Anne — graceful. "She has been a graceful fighter," she fought valiantly to live," said her father.

Kelly Anne's surprise arrival canceled her parents' plan to attend prenatal classes. Instead the couple, who were living in the married students quarters in Waterloo, rented a room in Hamilton. The father, a graduate student in social work at Wilfrid Laurier University, commuted to his summer job with the Children's Aid in Cambridge.

The tiny girl responded to the center's loving care and daily visits from her parents and thrived. In 2½ months she steadily gained weight and progressed from intravenous feedings, to being fed mother's milk by tube, to formula.

With delight the young parents saw their daughter graduate from a washcloth diaper to a regular one. Her arms "became too chubby for my wedding ring," said her father.

No predictions made of canning lid supply

By LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer

Government officials, manufacturers and consumers alike are keeping their fingers crossed and hoping that there won't be another shortage of canning lids this year. So far, however, no one is willing to predict what will happen.

Previous shortages, caused by lack of materials, a failure of manufacturers to anticipate the demand and hoarding by some Americans, prompted investigations by Congress and the Federal Trade Commission.

None of the probes turned up any evidence of wrongdoing on the part of the industry. Neither did they provide any clues on how to stop the problem from recurring.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says manufacturers are expected to turn out more than four billion replacement lids this year. Bill Kerr of the Kerr Glass Co. of Los Angeles, a major manufacturer, said he did not know whether four billion would be enough.

"I'd have to ask you what the demand will be," he said, noting that no one anticipated the sharp jump in the number of people who started growing their own fruits and vegetables to try to beat inflation and later turned to home canning to store their produce.

(Note: Canning jars are reusable; lids aren't. Each new jar comes with a lid and there were claims that manufacturers were deliberately withholding replacement lids so that home canners would have to buy the jars even if they didn't need them. The claims were never proved.)

The crunch — if there is one — will come later in the summer when people actually start canning. The advance situation varies from state to state.

"We anticipate no shortage," said a spokesman for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, interviewed early in the summer.

In contrast, a spokesman for the California Department of Consumer Affairs said he had surveyed stores and found, "There's definitely a shortage. Not as bad as last year, but definitely a shortage."

Several factors may ease the problem. Inflation has abated and people have found that it is not always cheaper to grow and can your own food. The number of companies manufacturing canning lids has increased, meanwhile, although a recent study showed that some of the new varieties are less efficient than the old standards.

The USDA has several suggestions for avoiding problems with home canning. Among them:

— Use jars made especially for home canning. Do not try to substitute containers such as mayonnaise jars.

— Do not use overripe food and do not pack the jars too full.

Nostalgia trip

By ERMA BOMBECK

A group of us indulged ourselves recently in a walk down memory lane in the year 1940 B.C. (Before Crime).

"Remember when we were kids and slept on our front porch in the summer and your only worry was catching cold?"

"Remember when the only time Daddy locked his car was when his keys were in it?"

"Remember when a sign in the window was for the bread man and not an emergency help station?"

"Remember when you could go into a public restroom and hang your purse on the hook inside the door?"

"Remember when your biggest problem was keeping kids from walking on the grass ... not smoking it?"

We were all on a pretty good nostalgia trip when my mother came into the room. "I'll bet old memories those good old days."

"What days are those?"

"The days when pens in banks weren't chained to the desk."

"Why should they be? They never worked anyway."

"The days when we went on vacation and never locked our house."

"There wasn't anything in there worth stealing."

"When there wasn't heavy breathing on the phone at night."

"That's because you never knew your asthmatic grandfather."

"When police didn't have to walk their beat in twos."

"So nuns have been doing it for years."

"Oh c'mon, Mom, you know what we mean. I can remember leaving my tricycle out on the street at nights. You couldn't do that nowadays. By the way, what happened to that tricycle?"

"Someone ripped it off," she said.

"Are you saying someone stole it?" We looked at her like she had just reported that the Yellow Brick Road was linoleum.

"Yep. Same week someone pinched my girdle off the back clothesline and a box of canning jars from the garage."

"You never told me that before."

"When we told you Alan Ladd was short, you cried for 15 days. We didn't think you could handle it."

Sims celebrate 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lee T. Sims, Versailles, will be honored for their golden wedding anniversary with an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at Versailles High School. Hosts will be nieces and nephews of the couple.

Mr. Sims and the former Elsie Kathryn Stockton were married July 25, 1926, on the lawn of the bride's parents, four miles north of Versailles, by the Rev. W.B. McGraw.

Mr. Sims is a former Morgan County superintendent of schools, having served as teacher, coach, principal, superintendent and counselor in high schools in Syracuse, Brunswick, Stover and Versailles during the past 50 years. He is a farmer and stockman on the original Sims homestead, settled by his great-grandfather, James Sims, in 1836.

Porkettes sponsor lard baking contest

The Missouri Porkettes are sponsoring a special baking contest at this year's Missouri State Fair, scheduled Aug. 20 to 29. For the contest are the same as department Q rules in home economics and the contest is open to all ages. The primary stipulation is that pure hog lard must be used for shortening in the recipes.

Aug. 1 is the deadline for entering the special contest. Entry tags, available from Mrs. John Ficken, Route 1, Ionia, Mo. 65335, must accompany the baked product to the State Fair. Exhibits will be accepted in the Home Economics Building on the Fairgrounds from 2 to 4 p.m. Aug. 15 and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Aug. 16. Perishable items will not be returned.

Four categories of food will be accepted in the special lard contest: white yeast bread, ½ loaf; any kind cookie, 4; white or yellow cake, with any frosting; and apple or cherry pie, to be judged on crust only.

Polly's pointers

Slippery sleeping on nylon sheets

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the plumbing fixtures in motel bathrooms. It seems they could standardize the faucet handles on the hot and cold water taps. We recently spent nine nights in different motels and not one of them had the same type fixtures as the others. One even had different taps for the tub and basin. The basin faucets turned counter clockwise for the warm and clockwise for the cold (opposite from those at home) and BOTH the hot and cold taps turned counter clockwise in the tub. This is irritating for adults but dangerous for small children. It almost seems they invent weird fixtures for bathrooms, since some are as complicated to figure out as a brain quiz. — JUNE.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Georgia that I have some wooden mixing spoons I have used for 25 years. I bleach them and wash in soapy water, rinse thoroughly and dry. They are still good as new. I have found nothing wrong with bleaching them and I do my cutting board the same way. It is sterile for cutting fresh meats to go in the freezer. I do a lot of home canning and freezing, so to avoid botulism I wash and scald our wooden utensils. We are really blessed since we follow the suggestions of our county extension agent. We can from 500 to 700 jars of food each year. — CALLIE.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — My daughter was given some nylon sheets. How does one anchor them to the bed? Hope someone has an answer. — DOROTHY

DEAR DOROTHY — You might try putting elastic around the corners to hold the sheets like fitted sheets. How about this, readers? — POLLY.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards, ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook, if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

Choreography gives new look to drill team

NEW YORK (AP) — A dancer who has choreographed dances for Broadway shows and TV commercials is now choreographing the drill routines of the Windsor Canadians, a precision military drill team that has appeared at bicentennial parades and sports events around the country.

Lee Theodore, who has had her own Jazz Ballet Theater company and has taught ballet, modern and jazz dance, has created new drill routines for the team.

The Canadians, New York area college students who are all veterans of intercollegiate drill competition, wear uniforms modeled after the Canadian Guards in Ottawa, Canada — red tunics, black pants and tall bearskin hats.

Their immaculate white gloves are custom made with a special design that allows maximum freedom of movement and with strong reinforcement at the thumb-finger juncture where there is most stress during drill. They wear shoes with wooden heels to emphasize cadence and carry demilitarized Springfield rifles with bayonets specially chromed to add flash.

The team's routines are a mix between the traditional British marching steps, such as the quick-march and slow-march — both done with exaggerated arm-swinging up to shoulder height — and the flashier American-style trick drill, with its rifle spins and intricate formations.

Hearing Loss is Not a Sign of Old Age

Chicago, Ill. — A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Bel-tone. A non-operating model of the smallest Bel-tone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

Send for this non-operating model now. Wear it in the privacy of your own home to see how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 9134, Bel-tone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria Street, Chicago, Ill. 60646.

Amendment No. 7 should be defeated

By far the most important state constitutional amendment that will be voted on Aug. 3 is No. 7, which would authorize tax aid to private and parochial schools in Missouri.

The proposed amendment would qualify non-public schools for tax aid in these areas: textbooks, transportation, and aid to the handicapped. The amendment would override four distinct articles of the Missouri Constitution that prohibit public funds being spent for private or sectarian purposes.

By its rather deceptive wording, the proposed amendment implies that these services may not currently be available in public schools of the state. They are. Those pupils whose parents desire to take advantage of the public school system have access to all of them right now.

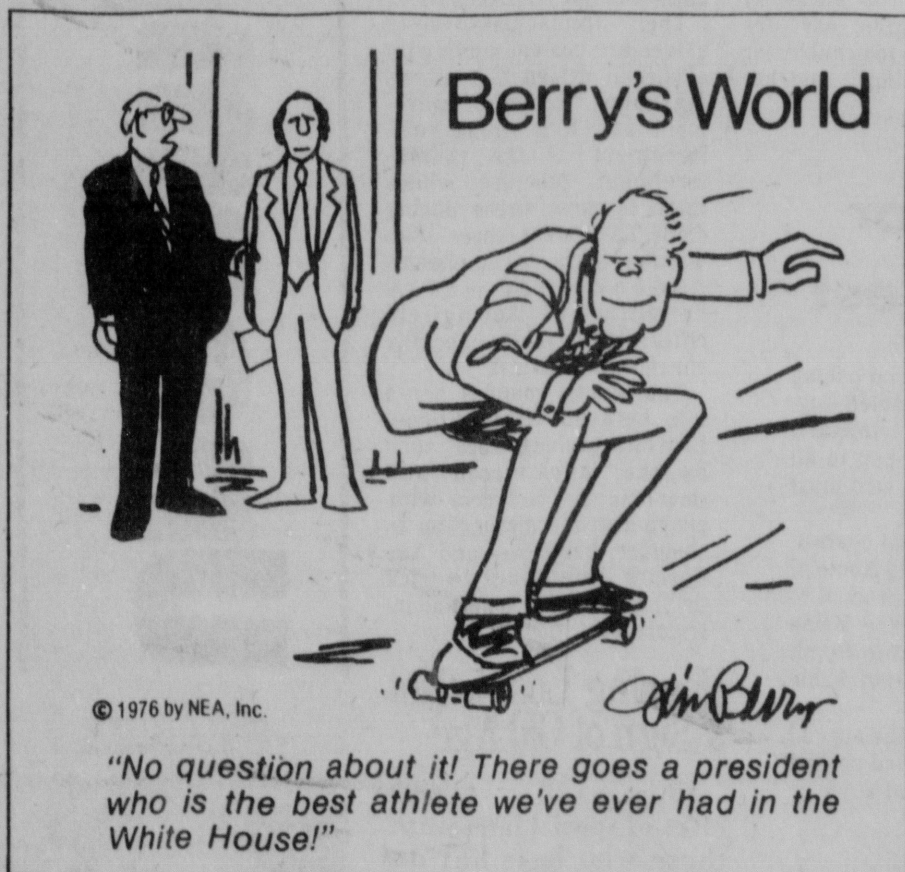

What amendment No. 7 would do, under its innocent-sounding wording, would be to knock a large chunk out of the wall that separates church and state in Missouri. Further steps would surely follow. Some people think this would be a good idea. We disagree, and think that the principles regarding church-state relations, which we have called to mind this bicentennial year, have served us well, both as a nation and a state.

Approval of this amendment would put all Missourians in the position of supporting various types of sectarian education (for the end result of such aid is to strengthen the schools involved, as the U.S. Supreme Court has repeatedly noted), whether they agree with it or not. This can only succeed in dividing the people of the state and its legislature along religious lines, something we definitely don't need.

Cost at the outset would be a minimum of about $7 million a year. This is money that would be taken out of funds for public education, which is already in bad enough shape. Estimates reach as high as $30 million in eventual costs. Taxes would almost certainly have to be raised. Since the amendment would benefit all private schools, both elementary and secondary, this means that elite institutions catering only to the wealthy would also get tax money.

Because of these and other factors, we foresee serious problems if Constitutional Amendment No. 7 is approved, for which the "yes" votes will be out in force. We urge its defeat Aug. 3.

"No question about it! There goes a president who is the best athlete we've ever had in the White House!"

Art Buchwald

The 'knowing-the-President' game

WASHINGTON—What we're talking about when we elect a President is power. The power starts at the top and seeps down into every part of the country. For people who deal in power and make their living off of it, it's very important to know—or at least to pretend to know—the President of the United States, or the Vice President, or anyone faintly connected with them.

There is no certainty at all that Jimmy Carter will be elected President of the United States. But if he is, these are a few things you could say to impress your friends and business acquaintances.

Buchwald

"Y'all know Rosalynn Carter, Jimmy's wife? Well, ma brother dated her sister."

"Li'l Amy Carter and my daughter used to sell lemonade together."

"We just bought a summer home in Plains, Ga."

"Come over the house for dinner. Billy Carter, Jimmy's brother, left some catfish in the deep freeze for us this morning."

"We just joined the First Baptist Church in Washington. The Episcopal Church wasn't doing anything for us."

"My mother and Jimmy Carter's Aunt Cissy have the same hairdresser."

"Fritz Mondale's son William gave my son a black eye yesterday."

"We decided to move our company headquarters to Atlanta. The South is where it's happening."

"Can I call you back? I've got Jimmy's mother, Miss Lillian, on hold."

"My law partner used to do Fritz Mondale's brother's tax work."

"So I had this bad back and I went to 20 doctors and none of them could do a thing for me. Then I heard about Jimmy's sister, Ruth. So I said, 'What the heck, I have nothing to lose.' Now I know you're not going to believe this but I had three sessions and my back was cured. It's amazing what faith can do for a bad back."

"Jimmy Carter has never lied to me."

"Have some peanuts, but I can't tell you who gave them to me."

"Joan Mondale went to school with my wife."

"I can never get the Carter kids' names straight. When they come in the house for milk they all look alike."

"I'll never forgive Gen. Sherman for what he did to Atlanta, even if Jimmy does."

"Eleanor Mondale used to be in my daughter's car pool."

"The reason I didn't take a job with his administration is I told the President I could be of much more value to him by advising him as a private citizen."

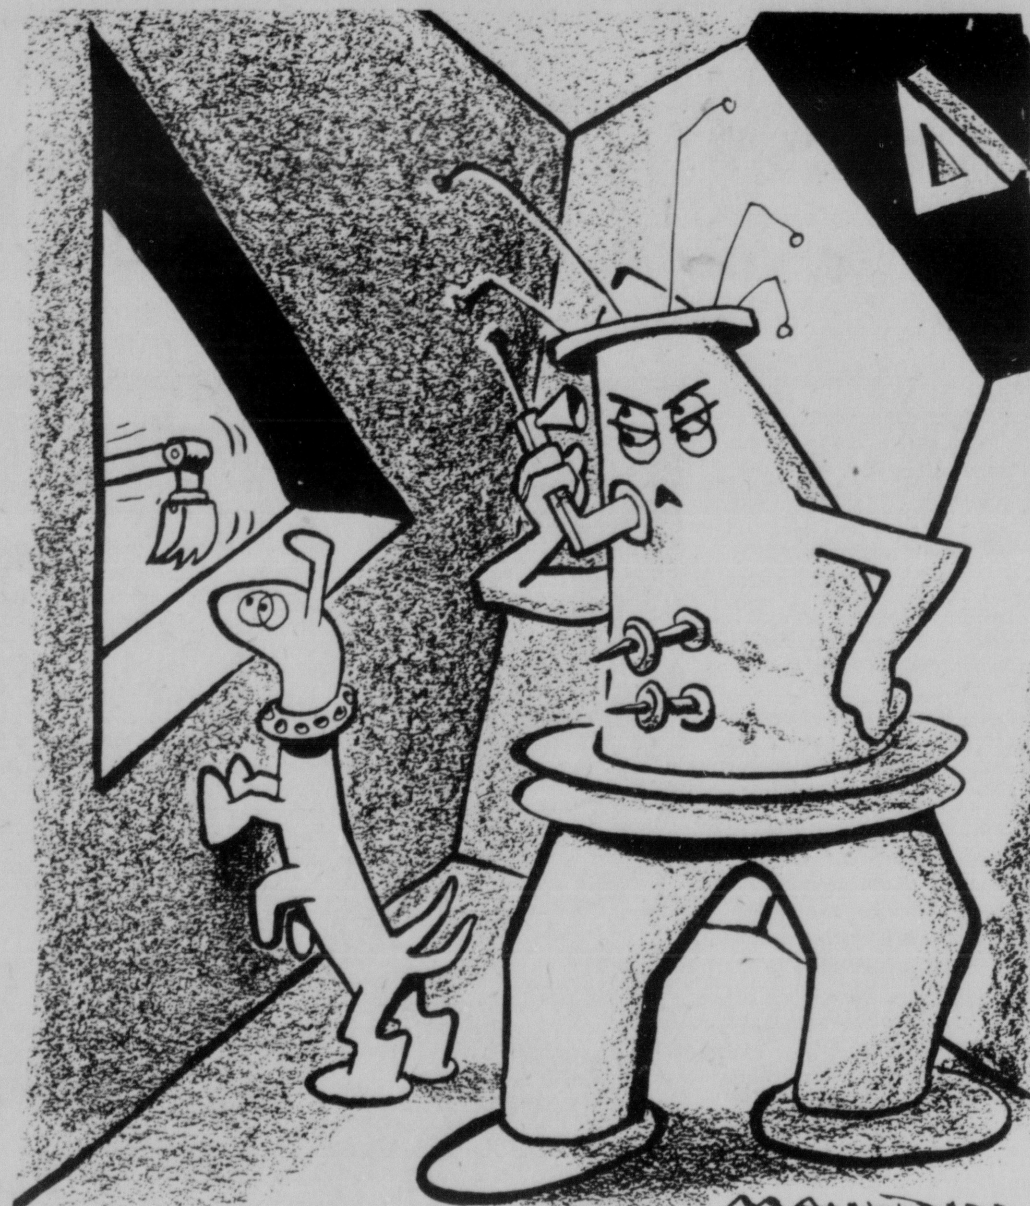

"Three guesses who came to my Bible class last Sunday?"

"When Jimmy was governor of Georgia, he pardoned my brother."

"Carter has never forgiven me for turning down a job in his administration."

"I'll say this for Jimmy. When we played football together in the Navy, he always wore a helmet."

Merry-go-round

President's men go after tax question

By JACK ANDERSON with
LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — President Ford's campaign aides are trying to make a case of tax avoidance against Ronald Reagan. The President's men, searching for material to embarrass Reagan, have asked a law firm to analyze the information he has released about his finances. The tax lawyers concluded, according to a confidential campaign memorandum, that he must be using his children to escape paying full taxes.

The confidential analysis indicates that Reagan's taxable income is "extraordinarily low for a man with his background and assets." The lawyers, therefore, believe that Reagan "most likely has a number of irrevocable trusts for his children. In that way, income derived from such trusts would not be reported by Mr. Reagan but would be reported by his children on their tax returns."

A spokesman for Reagan categorically denied that the former California governor has established irrevocable trusts for his children. We called this to the attention of the Ford aides, who were upset that we had obtained their confidential memo.

They acknowledged that they had no "hard evidence" to prove their case against Reagan. But if Reagan isn't hiding income in irrevocable trusts, they said, he must be hiding it somewhere else.

Reagan has only himself to blame for the questions that have been raised about his tax returns. Several months ago, we asked all the major presidential candidates for their income tax returns for the past five years. To avoid future Washington scandals, we contended, the public has the right to know whether presidential aspirants have a clean financial record.

Reagan was the only candidate who refused to open up his tax returns. It would violate his privacy, he said.

A month after our stories appeared, Reagan yielded under the pressure and released some general information about the taxes he had paid from 1970 through 1975. But he combined all his federal, state, property and sales taxes and revealed only the lump sum.

It was impossible to ferret out how much federal income tax Reagan had paid each year. Earlier, a story had leaked out that Reagan paid no state income taxes in 1970, even though his income for the year was $73,000.

"The tax lawyers have noted," states the confidential memo, "that if their understanding of Mr. Reagan's 1970 tax returns is correct, that is, no state taxes paid that year, they believe that he most likely paid no federal taxes because the same tax base is used" to calculate both state and federal taxes.

A spokesman insisted that Reagan had paid "several hundred dollars" in federal taxes in 1970 but refused to specify the exact amount.

TERRORIST TIES: Israel has claimed that Uganda's madcap President Idi Amin enthusiastically cooperated with the pro-Palestinian terrorists who hijacked a French airliner and flew the hostages to his country.

Israeli commandos made a daring, 2,500-mile stab into the jungle, landed at Uganda's Entebbe airport and freed the hostages. The raid has stirred up an international controversy, which culminated in a full-scale United Nations debate.

The irrepressible Idi Amin, meanwhile, has issued plaintive statements, wailing that he had tried to save the hostages and that the Israelis had repaid his kindness by shooting up his soldiers. The available information, according to our intelligence sources, confirms the Israeli account. Here's what our sources have been able to establish:

— The hijackers planned from the start to land in Uganda. They told the hostages their destination, and they took on enough fuel during a stopover in Libya to reach the Uganda airport.

— When the hijacked plane landed on Entebbe, a German terrorist was heard by witnesses to say: "Now it is okay. I can see Ugandan soldiers are here."

— In the airport lounge, Ugandan waiters already had food prepared for the hostages. One prisoner asked how so many meals could be prepared so fast. The head waiter laughed and said: "We knew well in advance you were coming."

— Amin personally embraced the terrorists, calling them "My brothers." He loudly proclaimed that he was their friend and that he would help liberate all the Palestinian prisoners in Israel.

DANGEROUS COLUMN: The Food and Drug Administration has accused columnist James Kilpatrick of writing a dangerous column about the apricot-pit-derived drug Laetrile, which has been offered as a cancer cure.

Kilpatrick conceded that the drug is probably "worthless" but defended the cancer victims' right to use it, contending it is "harmless." The FDA, in a private letter to Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., warned that Laetrile is far from "harmless" but, on the contrary, could cause death.

"Mr. Kilpatrick's false claim that Laetrile is harmless cannot be dismissed or interfere with early diagnosis and swift treatment."

Footnote: Kilpatrick told us the FDA is "wrought up. This is purely a matter of scientific disagreements on the harmlessness."

Memories of the convention

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

SCRABBLE, Va. — Mr. and Mrs. J. Tolliver Spelvin returned on Friday, to their home in Scrabble after a five-day visit to New York City. There they attended the Democratic National Convention, which Mr. Spelvin described as an "unforgettable experience."

In an exclusive interview with the weekly Vindicator-Whig, the local delegate declared that "I would like to forget that convention, but I can't."

"I won't let him forget it," asserted Mrs. Spelvin. "If he had actually nominated and voted for that woman, I would have died on the spot. I mean I would have been mortified to death. I would have expired. J. T. is an old fool, and you can print that in the Vindicator-Whig."

Mrs. Spelvin was alluding to the attempt by Mr. Spelvin, not hitherto disclosed, to nominate Miss Lauren Bacall, an actress, to become President of the United States. The attempt was thwarted. Mrs. Spelvin related, when the chairman of the Virginia delegation wrestled her husband to the floor of the convention hall and sat on his head until the roll call was completed Wednesday night.

"It was disgraceful," Mrs. Spelvin exclaimed. "I admit she is a pretty woman. I will have to say that. I won't deny it. But this old billy goat had no business trying to put her up for President."

From Mrs. Spelvin's account, it appeared that she and her husband early in the evening had attended a small soiree at the Park Avenue home of William F. Buckley Jr., the famous columnist, novelist and raconteur. Miss Bacall, wearing black slacks and a white ruffled blouse, was among the guests. The menu included caviar, stuffed mushroom caps, pastrami sandwiches and Jack Daniels sour mash bourbon whiskey.

"J.T. took one look at that woman," Mrs. Spelvin recalled, "and he got all goosy eyed. He put mustard on the caviar. Mrs. Buckley had prepared a lovely green goo dip, and he started to eat it with a fork. He turned purple in the face. Steam was coming out of his ears. He was stammering like a man with a mouthful of tacks. I thought old J.T. was having a fit."

"Lovely gal," Mr. Spelvin interjected. "Lovely gal."

"Well," Mrs. Spelvin continued, "they talked a little while, him and her, and if anything, it just got worse. He was picking up her napkin. He was asking Miss Bacall would she like another mushroom cap, and she was saying, don't mind if I do. J.T. was sucking his stomach so he wouldn't look so fat. He was whinnying like a horse. He was down with the spavins and heaves."

"Lovely gal," Mr. Spelvin repeated. "Positively smashing gal."

"It was you who was smashed," Mrs. Spelvin retorted. "You were pickled like a dilly bean. You were pickled like a Christmas ham. One more minute and you would have been trying to play the piano."

The guests departed about 7 o'clock, Mrs. Spelvin recounted, in order to make their way to Madison Square Garden where the roll call of the states would soon commence. Miss Bacall shook hands with Mr. Spelvin, whom she addressed as "Mr. Selner," not having got his name straight, and shortly thereafter Mr. Spelvin, additionally fortified, departed by taxi to the convention hall.

The Virginia vote, as officially recorded, was 48 for Governor Carter and six for Morris Udall, but if the chairman had not been sitting on Mr. Spelvin's head, it would have been 47 for Carter, six for Udall and one for Bacall. Of such misfortunes is history made.

Mr. Spelvin acknowledged that he felt too indisposed on Thursday to attend the convention's closing session, but he told the Vindicator-Whig that he was "quite content" with the Carter-Mondale slate. He felt, however, that Miss Bacall would have been a better choice than Senator Mondale for the vice-presidential spot. "She would have rounded out the ticket," he observed.

Mr. Spelvin asked this newspaper to make an announcement for him. "I expect to be a candidate in 1980," he declared, "as a delegate to the Democratic convention of that year."

"Not on your cotton-picking, ever-loving life," Mrs. Spelvin rejoined. "Old J.T. can stay home in 1980 and look after the chickens. This was his first convention, and believe me, baby, it was his last as well."

Sides near agreement

Players' ratification last hurdle for pact

NEW YORK (AP) — Only one hurdle remains to be cleared on the path towards settlement of baseball's long and often bitter labor dispute following ratification of the agreements by major league club owners.

It is now up to the 600-member Players Association to give its approval to the agreements reached in Philadelphia during last week's All-Star break, and according to the union's executive director, Marvin Miller, that endorsement is expected by the end of the month.

"We're in the process of getting the documents out to the teams, and then we'll begin the voting," Miller said. "We would hope to have it completed within two weeks, maybe less."

Miller was confident the players would follow the owners action and accept the proposal. "I think the agreements represent tremendous advances for the players in a great many areas, and that over-all they represent a fair and equitable settlement," Miller said.

The owners' acceptance of the four-year agreement was announced by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn on Monday.

"The club owners have approved and therefore ratified the recommendation of the Player Relations Committee that the collective bargaining agreements with the Players Association be okayed," Kuhn said. "There were 17 votes for approval, including a majority in both leagues," from among 24 owners. A simple majority of 13 approvals, including at least five in each league, was needed.

Although there were 17 yes votes from among 24 owners, that does not mean there were seven no votes, the commissioner said. "The balance of the club owners largely supported the view of desiring an additional major league meeting to further discuss the agreements," he explained.

There was known to be a measure of opposition among the owners concerning the agreement, which would replace the so-called reserve system, which began to crumble last winter when arbitrator Peter Seitz granted free agent status to pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally, a decision twice upheld by the courts.

Terms of the agreement never have been formally announced, although it is known to include a framework under which a player with five years in the major leagues can demand to be traded, and if that demand is not met he may become a free agent after one more year.

Any player who thus becomes a free agent may negotiate with up to 12 teams, going in inverse order of the previous season's standings. Limits will be set on the number of free agents who may be signed by any one club, and a player who goes the free agent route is bound to his new team for at least five years.

S-C grid camp opens

Under the watchful eyes of head Smith-Cotton football coach Bob Fletcher (upper left), about 25 high school gridgers opened a two-week, voluntary football camp at the practice field north of Jennie Jaynes Stadium Monday evening. The two-hour sessions, which run from 6-8 p.m. each evening, continue all through this week and all of next week. Fletcher, in his second year as head coach at S-C, and assistant coach Ralph "Skip" Schulz are running the camp.

Jackson blast plenty

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Reggie Jackson, one of the more theatrical athletes on the scene today, has recaptured center stage but wants other people to take some bows, too.

"I'm finally getting back in the groove, sure, but one guy can't make the difference on any team," the broad-shouldered slugger said Monday night after clugging a 420-foot two-run homer to boost Baltimore past Kansas City, 4-3.

"One guy can't make a team. Most people don't understand that. I've got Lee May in the lineup behind me, and there's a man who's going to bat in 100 runs a year. You think I don't get an extra pitch once in a while? You bet I do."

Jackson's April trade to the Orioles from the Oakland A's made headlines across the land and the celebrated slugger kept the situation seething with his contract demands. He finally stepped onto the field in a Baltimore uniform on May 2. And only now is he beginning to regain the touch that made him the most feared hitter in the American League. Since July 2 he has blistered the ball at better than a .400

Chiefs release 5 from roster

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Five rookies were released Monday as the Kansas City Chiefs' reduced their roster to 69 players.

Four rookie free agents and the Chiefs' 14th draft choice, Rich Thurman, a tackle from Texas, were released.

The free agents were linebackers Bruce Reed of Central Missouri State and Lynn Young of Henderson State, and defensive backs Alan Webster of Southern Colorado and Bruce Johnson from Kansas City, Kan., and Lincoln.

clip and in his last six games is 10-for-21 with four home runs and 13 RBI.

"It took me a month to get back in shape, and, more important than that, to get comfortable with a new team," he said. "Now the guys are starting to get to know me, and I'm getting to know them."

Jackson helped himself to another beer and delivered a subtle slap at the Baltimore ownership who opposed his contract demands for so long.

"I knew exactly what I wanted to play for. And it took them about 30 days to realize that what I said was what I meant."

"Now, if I could have got started right away, I'm not saying it would have made a lot of difference in the standings right now. I'm not saying that at all. But I could have got started a lot quicker, and we could have played in unison a lot sooner."

Johnson replaced with Don Zimmer

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Don Zimmer, replacing fired 1975 American League Manager of the Year Darrell Johnson, says he would be "the happiest man in the world" if the Boston Red Sox continue to show the same fighting spirit they displayed Monday night in a 4-3 loss to the Texas Rangers.

"This was the first time in my life I've been on a losing team that I liked what I saw," said Zimmer, who will serve as interim Red Sox manager until the end of the season. "The players acted in the dugout tonight like a team that is fighting for a pennant. That's what I want to see and that's what I saw."

The fact that Boston is not fighting for a pennant is precisely why Johnson is no longer with the team.

The Red Sox, who took the Cincinnati Reds down to the ninth inning of the seventh game of the World Series, were solid favorites to win the American League East again. Instead, they are languishing in fifth place, 14 games behind the New York Yankees.

"The way the team has been going lately, I don't blame (General Manager) Dick O'Connell or the Red Sox one bit," Johnson said of his firing. "In my opinion it was time for a change."

He attributed his downfall to the Red Sox "not scoring runs the way they are capable of and the way they did last year."

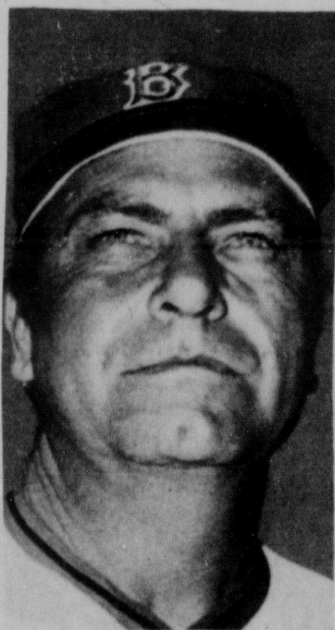

Johnson said he would not change the way he handled the team if he played the season over, but Zimmer implemented some immediate changes in the starting line-up.

Zimmer said he plans to keep Steve Dillard at third base, on a regular basis and play Carl Yastrzemski at first base on the road and in left field at Fenway Park.

The Red Sox fought back from a 3-0 deficit to tie Monday's game on a two-run homer by Cecil Cooper and a solo shot by Dwight Evans, but the Rangers won the contest in the 11th on a run-scoring single by Toby Harrah.

"Close only counts in horse-shoes, but if I continue to see the fighting spirit I saw tonight, we'll start winning some ball games," Zimmer said. If I see this from now until Oct. 3, I'll be the happiest man in the world."

Of his interim status, Zimmer said, "I wanted it that way. I feel if I do the job I'll be rehired. I'm not worried about getting a job. If O'Connell wants to make a change at the end of the year, I'll be happy to go back and coach third base."

Zimmer, 45, has been the Red Sox third base coach since the start of the 1974 season. He previously managed the San Diego Padres in 1972-73. He spent 12 years as an active player for five major league teams.

JBR All-Stars named to team

Fred Davis, manager of the Sedalia Junior Babe Ruth All-Star Team that will represent the city in the Midwest Plains Regional Tournament next month, has announced the members of his squad.

Heading the list is Roger Miller of the league champion Bears, who was selected as the league's most valuable player.

Four other Bears joined their teammate on the squad, which will face the Nebraska state Junior Babe Ruth champion in the opening round of play in Liberty Park Stadium Aug. 10. They are Clarence Gravitt, Tony Spruell, Floyd Ulmer and Mitch Woolery. Mitch McKee, another Bear, landed one of the two alternate spots on the team.

From the Chiefs, Brad Burton was named; representing the Royals are Scott Calder, Jim Finley, Ray Hargrave, Dan Hawley and Tony Pettit. Tom Davis was named from the Cubs; Ralph Landi and Roy Webb were named from the Cardinals, while Jeff Wickliffe was named from the Dodgers.

The other alternate spot went to Mike Bryson of the Cards.

Fred Davis, who managed the Cubs during the regular season, named as his coaches for the all-stars Larry Decker and Phil Denny, both of the Dodgers.

In his announcement Monday, Davis also said that Randy Higgins had been selected at league's outstanding rookie for the 1976 season.

The opening game of the tournament, which will see the winner advance to the Junior Babe Ruth World Series, is slated for 11 a.m. Aug. 10 between the North Dakota and Colorado state champs. At 1:30 p.m. that day, the Kansas and Missouri champions square off. Iowa and Minnesota clash at 5:30 p.m., while the Sedalia Junior Babe Ruth All-Stars meet Nebraska in the Aug. 10 8 p.m. game.

2 more perfect 10 marks for Romania's Comaneci

MONTREAL (AP) — The very imperfect Olympics — with all its troubles and strife, fears and police forces, threats and boycotts — suddenly has been graced by perfection.

It's a tiny package, this little bit of perfection, standing only 4-feet-11 and weighing in at 88 pounds of pure grace and rhythm, topped by a pony-tail and occasionally spiced by a saucy gesture.

It's magnificent little Nadia Comaneci, a 14-year-old Romanian girl, who has captured the imagination of the world, one billion of whose people have watched on television her performances that are truly unbelievable.

She opened the Games with a perfect score of 10 — the first ever achieved in the Olympics — on the uneven parallel bars Sunday. And she followed that with a mind-boggling, second perfect score on the hazardous balance beam yesterday.

And still she wasn't done. There was more to come — more of that which is supposed to be unattainable by mortals.

She recorded still another perfect score last night in optional performances on the uneven parallel bars.

"I was very glad," she said. "But it wasn't the first time. I've done it 19 times."

But no one had ever done it in the Olympics.

Her spectacular performances brought to their feet a wildly-cheering crowd of 18,000, some of them almost tearful in their adoration of this flying, twisting little girl who usually wears a poker face devoid of expression.

But she can, and does on perfect occasions, flash that appealing, beguiling smile of youth.

Her fantastic displays overshadowed another 1-2-3 sweep by the American men's swimming team, this in the 200-meter freestyle.

She was more impressive than the powerful East Germans who have won every event on the women's swimming program so far.

She made secondary a cheating incident that resulted in the disqualification of a Russian star in the Modern Pentathlon.

World records fell in profusion. But what are world records when perfection is offered?

The Russians won the team gold in the women's gymnastics, but it was almost overlooked in the outpouring of praise and affection for Nadia, who is now the overwhelming favorite to take the individual all-around title Wednesday night.

Long John Naber was the star of the American swim team that collected two more gold medals and helped push the United States' accumulation for the Games to three gold, four silver and two bronze. East Germany leads with four gold, three silver, three bronze. Russia has three gold and one bronze.

The 6-foot-6 Naber, a senior at Southern California, won the 100 backstroke in world record time of 55.49, then just missed in his bid for a double-gold evening. He was out-touched by Bruce Furniss, Santa Ana, Calif., an hour later in the men's 200 freestyle.

Furniss won in world record time of 1:50.29. Naber was timed in 1:50:50 and Jim Montgomery, Madison, Wis., made it the second American sweep of the Games with his 1:50:58 for third.

"I'm very glad," said the gregarious Naber. "I couldn't have swum a better backstroke race."

No one ever has. He was the first to crack 56 seconds in the event and foiled East Germany's Roland Matthes' hopes of winning a gold in three consecutive Olympics. Matthes, the world record holder until these Games started, finished third behind Peter Rocca, Orinda, Calif., and said he wouldn't compete at the event again.

John Hencken, Santa Clara, Calif., also set a world record with a clocking of 1:03.02 in leading the qualifying for the men's 100 breaststroke and prompted a happy coach Doc Counsilman to observe: "We'll just have to wait till it's over and count the medals."

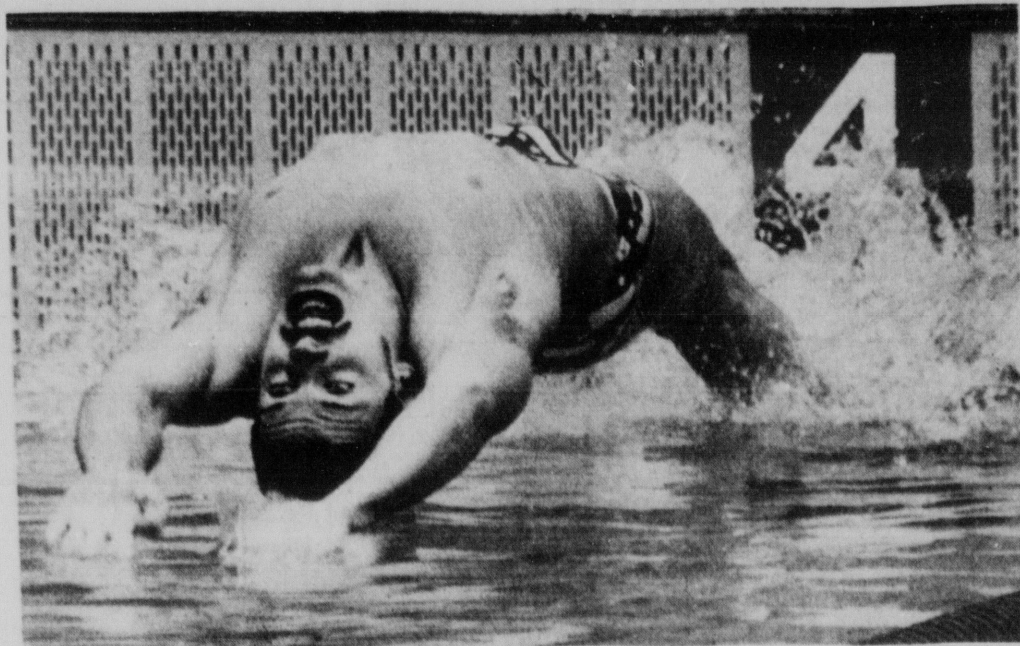

The East German women, like the American men, remained unbeaten with two more swimming triumphs. Andrea Pollack led an East German sweep of the women's 200 butterfly in Olympic record time of 2:11.41. Kornelia Ender, Matthes' fiancée, won the 100 freestyle in 55.65, a world record. Petra Primer of East Germany was second and Enith Brigitha of Holland third.

Bulgarian Norair Nurikian won the bantamweight weightlifting gold with a world record combined lift of 577.5 pounds. Grzegorz Cziura of Poland was second and Kenkichi Ando of Japan third.

In the only other gold medal event, Romania finished second to Russia in the women's gymnastics and East Germany took the bronze. It was Romania's highest finish ever and Russia's seventh consecutive team title.

Russia's hopes for a repeat team title in the Modern Pentathlon took a severe jolt, however, when Boris Onischenko was disqualified by a jury of appeal for using an epee that had double wiring in it and could register a touch even though he had not touched his opponent.

"There is no doubt whatsoever in our minds that it was a deliberate attempt to fraudulently alter the results," said William O. Grut of Sweden, secretary-general of the International Union for the Modern Pentathlon.

American John Naber...
...headed for gold medal

Naber: big happy extrovert

MONTREAL (AP) — America's newest swimming hero stands as a 6-foot-6 tower of enthusiasm and a winning symbol of what could be the best Olympic men's team in history.

He's John Naber and after two nights of competition, he set a world record twice and won a gold and silver medal in two diametrically opposite events — the 100-meter backstroke and 200 freestyle.

Swimming fans tend already to compare the University of Southern California senior to Mark Spitz, who won seven gold medals in 1972.

Naber, who wears a red, white and blue knit cap as he marches to the starting blocks, does have a chance of adding three more gold medals to his collection, but his personality is just about the opposite of Spitz.

"Mark didn't have the dominating personality of John, who's a very outgoing man," says Olympic Coach Doc Counsilman of Indiana. "He comes into the dining hall, takes off his cap and waves it at just about everyone."

"It's not just at the pool that he waves. He's an extrovert while Mark was an introvert."

Olympics on TV

MONTREAL (AP) — John Hencken of Santa Clara, Calif., will go after a gold medal tonight in swimming as ABC-TV coverage of the Olympic Games continues.

Hencken broke the Olympic record and tied his own world mark in the 100-meter breaststroke trials Monday, then came back in the semifinals to lower the world record to 1:03.62.

The network's coverage, much of it live, will run from 7:30 to 11 p.m., EDT, plus a 15-minute wrap-up at 11:30 p.m.

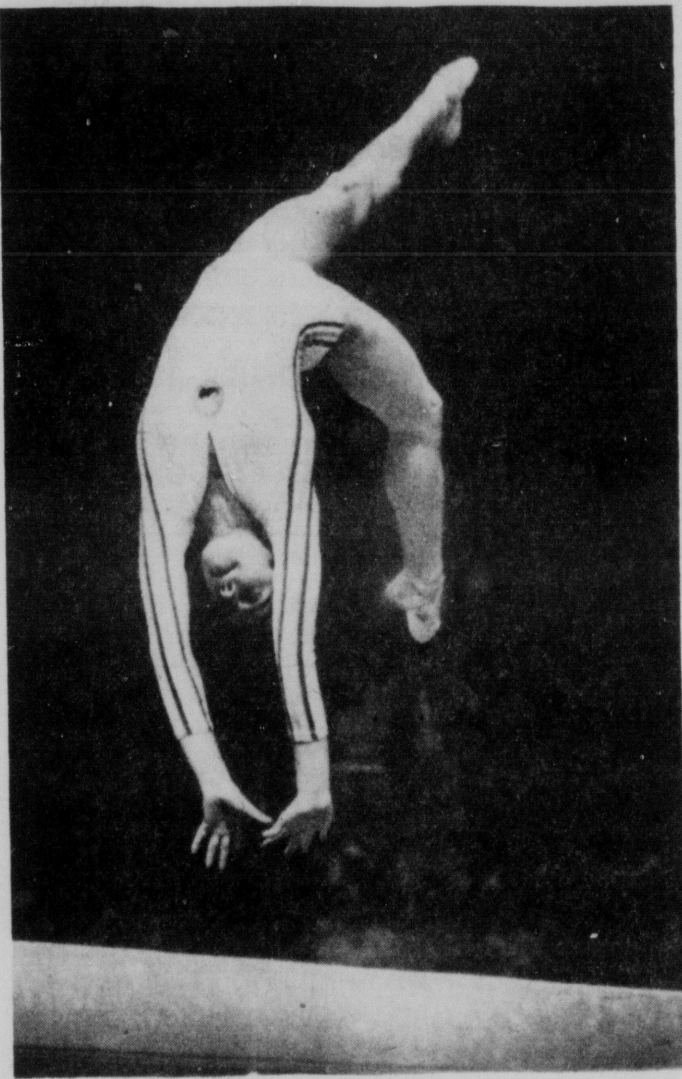

Both U.S. basketball teams will be in action today, the women facing Bulgaria and the men taking on Puerto Rico. The American boxing team also will have several bouts.

Gold medals up for grabs tonight in swimming include:

—Women's 400 freestyle, where Shirley Babashoff of Fountain Valley, Calif., takes on the powerful East Germans in her best event.

—Men's 100 breaststroke, where Hencken duels David Wilkie of Scotland.

—Men's 1,500 freestyle, where Bobby Hackett of Yonkers, N.Y., and Brian Goodell of Mission Viejo, Calif., battle Steve Holland of Australia.

Nadia Comaneci...

Comanecistealing show from Korbut

MONTREAL (AP) — Olga Korbut and Nadia Comaneci shook hands.

The woman who reigned as the queen of gymnastics and the princess who is taking her crown met and clasped hands Monday in the throneroom of the Olympics.

"I feel we are friends," Nadia, the 14-year-old Romanian, said later of her meeting with the 21-year-old Korbut of the Soviet Union.

The meeting lasted a moment as the No. 1 Soviet team greeted the No. 2 Romanians. Olga stood with her teammates on a platform and extended her hand down to Nadia.

But it was Nadia to whom the crowd paid homage — and Olga seemed to know it.

Nadia, a younger, more skillful, more collected Olga, but without Olga's warmth.

Nadia brought the crowd to its feet with two perfect scores of 10 in the uneven bars and the balance beam. They were her third perfect scores in two days, but the 19th of her career.

Nadia was consummate skill and grace, a serious little technician.

Olga stumbled, wavered and even fell as she came off the vault. She nearly fell off the balance beam. She struck her head in a practice somersault. Her once impish smile was thin.

Nadia stood No. 1 overall after Monday's competition. Olga stands fifth. She failed to qualify for the final competition in floor exercises in which she won a gold medal four years ago.

Even on her own team, the slight Olga is being upstaged by the even slighter Maria Filatova, a 15-year-old crowd charmer with big white bows on her two ponytails.

Asked later if she planned to retire after these Olympics, Olga said, "Nyet," but said she was interested in pursuing theater arts.

On Sunday, Nadia and Olga both said they hadn't seen each other perform.

On Monday, they were intent on their own performances and seemed deliberately to ignore each other or cast only a nonchalant glance in their rival's direction.

At last, as Nadia stood ready for the uneven bars, Olga was poised on the runway for the vault. There was a pause. Neither looked at the other.

They waited. The air was charged.

Finally, Olga plunged to the vault, twisting eloquently in midair, but landing imperfectly and scoring 9.70.

On her second try, Olga landed off balance and fell on her behind, scoring 9.15.

She walked away, turned her back to Nadia on the parallel bars and began pouring paper cups of ice water on an apparently sore ankle. Nadia scored 10. The crowd cheered and stood up.

Olga walked off to find a water cooler at the far end of the arena and poured more ice water on her ankle. She never looked back.

Nadia's team was kissing her. Three times, she returned smiling and waving.

Olga didn't watch. In the end, they clasped hands.

Centralia 20-year-old medalist

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Medalist honors in the 38th annual Women's Missouri Golf Association Tournament were captured Monday by 20-year-old Diane Daugherty of Centralia who fired a three over par 75 on the Hickory Hills Country Club course.

A junior physical education major at Stephens College in Columbia, she captured the top spot in the 32-player championship flight with a 38-37 on the 5,915-yard course.

Barbara Beuckman of St. Louis, Edna Mae Speaker of Lebanon and Cathy Reynolds of Springfield tied for runner-up honors, two shots back at 77.

Beuckman had 37-40, Speaker 40-37, and Reynolds 39-38.

Barbara Berkmeier of St. Louis, the winner of the last two tournaments had to finish with a string of pars to card a 40-40-80.

The 175 golfers begin double elimination match play today with 18 holes each day leading up to flight finals Saturday.

Daugherty, who won last year's championship flight consolation, and prefers match play to medal play, carded three birdies to offset a pair of bogeys and a double bogey.

She sank five-foot puts for birdies on the sixth and eighth holes, then rammed home a 12-footer for a birdy-four of 13.

That helped offset a pair of three-put bogeys on numbers two and three.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Prostrate trouble: what's its cause?

Dear Dr. Lamb - I read your column on prostate gland trouble, but it did not answer one question. If a person (who has been a diabetic since 1965 and is now 56) quit sex would he increase his prostate gland trouble, which is nearly nothing now? I go to the doctor once a year. In other words does lack of sex cause prostate gland trouble?

Dear Reader - There is a lot of confusion about the role of sexual activity in prostate gland trouble. That is partly because "prostate gland trouble" covers a lot of different problems.

The prostate gland forms secretions and when it is stimulated frequently it forms more secretions. Young men at the peak of their sex drive tend to form the most secretions. When the secretions accumulate, the gland becomes boggy or swollen from distention. In this condition it is ripe for bacteria to set up housekeeping and cause an acute infection. The infection in this instance is something like an abscess. It may cause chills and fever. When the bacteria are eliminated by nature's own defense mechanisms or by proper antibiotic treatment the infection and its symptoms disappear. It would seem that a normal amount of sexual activity helps to prevent this problem.

The acute infections have nothing to do with chronic prostate trouble that is more common in middle-aged and older men. The chronic inflammation may be associated with a variety of organisms but often the real cause of the inflammation is not known. It is doubtful that sexual activity either harms or helps such a condition.

There is now evidence that the enlargement of the prostate that causes obstruction of the bladder is related to the accumulation of one chemical type of testosterone, the male hormone. Having demonstrated the accumulation of this fraction of the hormone in the gland itself there is now hope that it will be possible to block its action or storage and in this way correct or prevent prostate enlargement. This might be done without affecting the function of the other fractions of male hormone. At present no medicine is available that will do this.

Dear Dr. Lamb - I want to know if a vasectomy causes prostate gland trouble? And once a man has had prostate surgery does that mean no more sex?

Dear Reader - No, a vasectomy

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS
If you are in favor of this proposition, place an X in the box opposite "YES". If you are opposed to this proposition, place an X in the box opposite "NO".

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 5

(Submitted by the 78th General Assembly)
(Second Regular Session)

- ☐ YES Repeals provision of Missouri Constitution which provides "Separate schools shall be provided white and colored children, except in cases otherwise provided for by law."
- ☐ NO

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

Priest says Democrats may lose Catholic vote

KANSAS CITY (AP) - A Catholic priest predicts half the members of the church may desert the Democratic party this year because its stand on abortion "seems to be written expressly to alienate Catholics."

"The rest of the Democratic platform is excellent," said the Rev. Tom Reardon, who will join other Roman Catholic leaders Thursday in Washington to plan strategy for the Republican National Convention. He is director of the Catholic Formation Center in Kansas City.

The Democratic plank says it would be undesirable to amend the Constitution to overturn decisions on abortion by the U. S. Supreme Court limiting the right of the states to prohibit abortions.

Father Reardon said he agreed with the Rev. Robert N. Deming, pastor of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Kansas City, who declined to give the benediction at the Democratic National Convention because of the abortion plank.

"The Republicans have given us time to testify at their platform hearings," Father Reardon said. "We want the Republicans to understand the Catholic position."

Father Reardon predicted even if the Republicans adopt

Switch in identities discovered

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) - A 22-year-old St. Louis man was being held in the Cole County Jail here Monday evening after he allegedly used his looks to give his brother some free time from a state prison facility.

Sheriff Wyman Basinger said charges of aiding and abetting the escape of a prisoner would be sought Tuesday against Charles Bocclair, whose brother Herbert apparently escaped from the Church Prison Farm west of here Sunday afternoon.

A spokesman for the Missouri Division of Corrections, Mark Steward, said Herbert D. Bocclair Jr., also of St. Louis, escaped by allegedly switching identities with his look-alike brother.

Steward said the inmate, who began a three-year term for stealing June 10, allegedly changed clothes with his brother during a Sunday afternoon visiting period.

The switch wasn't discovered until 6:30 a.m. Monday during a count of prisoners.

"Activity was different than normal and they could tell something was wrong," Steward said in describing how prison officials learned of the switch.

He said part of the plan included the prisoner's return to the farm Monday for a visit, during which time he would go back to his inmate identity.

"But Herbert has not come back," Steward said.

Mechanic killed as tire explodes

BRIDGETON, Mo. (AP) - A 60-year-old mechanic was killed Monday when the tire he was putting on a tractor-trailer truck exploded, police said.

Police said pieces of the tire and a retaining ring struck the victim, Albert Onyika of DeSoto, in the head and knocked him several feet into the side of a pickup truck.

a neutral stand on abortion they will attract a large majority of Catholics. The only way that Catholics could remain within the Democratic party would be if Jimmy Carter were to disavow the abortion plank, he said.

The Democratic nominee for president last week refused to do this.

Father Reardon said Ronald Reagan has attracted widespread Catholic support by advocating a constitutional amendment which would prohibit abortion.

Swimming venture ends in drowning

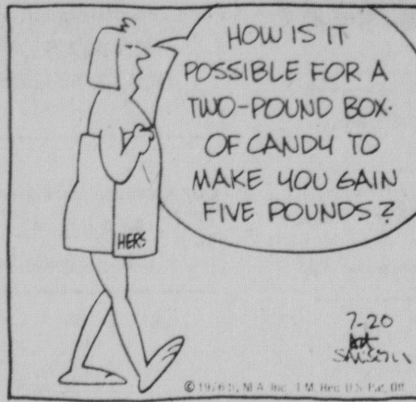

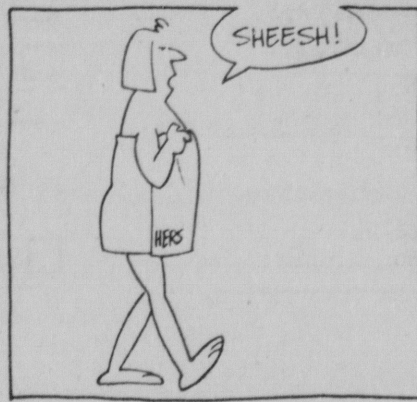

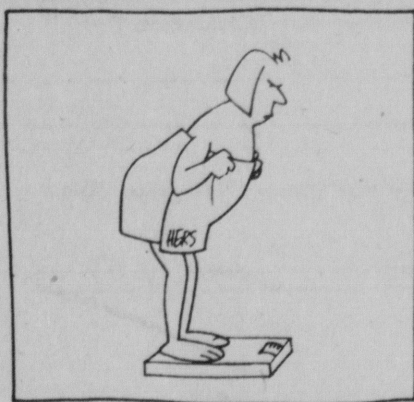

KANSAS CITY (AP) - A 62-year-old man who apparently became bored with an afternoon of fishing drowned Monday while swimming in Terrace Lake, police said.

Police said Arthur E. Van Norman had apparently been drinking.

Witnesses told police that Van Norman had been fishing most of the day with a companion when he became bored, stripped to his undershorts and jumped into the water.

The companion said Van Norman had been in the water a short time when he suddenly went under.

queen, which South won. South trusted East. His normal play would have been to take the diamond finesse and go one down. Instead he cashed dummy's ace of diamonds and ran off seven clubs to wind up holding one spade and the queen-jack of diamonds while dummy held ace-king-10 of spades. East was unmercifully squeezed. He had to chuck his king of diamonds or unguard his queen-jack of spades. Dave points out also that East could have insured defeat of the contract by playing his queen of spades at trick two, but he was too busy talking.

Ask the Jacobys

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The American Bridge Teachers' Association quarterly always contains some interesting and instructive hands. Here is one by Dave Smith.

Forget about the bidding. North's two-spade response is a tremendous overbid and while six clubs is unbeatable, it got declarer to six notrump. Dave used the hand to illustrate a point we have made many times in this column. The less you talk about your hand, the better.

When dummy hit the table East remarked "I should have doubled". Then East took his ace of hearts and returned the

A Wisconsin reader wants to know why we lead the king from either ace-king of king-queen. The answer is that it has been done that way since long before Oswald Jacoby started to play bridge and he has played for 65 years. There are some disadvantages, but the great majority of experts find that it is better to continue this practice than to try something else.

Ann Landers

Alcohol report called destructive

Dear Ann Landers: I am a recovered alcoholic and a long-time member of AA. Something I read in the paper recently bothered me so much I was up all night. I hope and pray you will print my letter and undo some of the damage done by the Rand Corporation.

The Rand Corp. study released only recently stated, "Some alcoholics can return to normal drinking after treatment with no more danger of excessive imbibing than teetotalers." That statement is tantamount to tossing a firebomb into the crowd at a football stadium. Millions of alcoholics would love to believe it — that's all they need to go back to the bottle. And you can bet, after reading that release, many of them will. What a tragedy!

The suggestion that sober alcoholics might experiment with controlled drinking is completely erroneous. I have spent the greater part of my adult life studying and working with alcoholics. I can tell you that this approach has proven to be almost universally disastrous.

The announcement by the Rand Corp. study group conveys appalling ignorance. They say, "The majority of improved patients are either drinking moderate amounts of alcohol — but at levels far below what could be described as alcoholic drinking — or they are engaging in alternating periods of drinking and abstinence."

Anyone who has studied alcoholism knows QUANTITY has little to do with the alcoholic's problem. It is HOW the person responds to alcohol that determines whether or not he is a problem drinker. Once a person has crossed the line between social drinking and alcoholism, he should not have even a single drop.

Rand deserves a kick in their collective pants for their irresponsibility in releasing such destructive material. Sign me — A Chicago Reader.

Dear Reader: Thank you for writing. I, too, saw the Rand

Corp. release and was horrified. I earnestly hope that enough high-powered experts in the field of alcoholism will clobber that report sufficiently so that we will soon be reading a retraction.

Dear Ann: I agree with "I'm P.K." It's HER face. Why should she alter what God gave her just to please others? And why do you rate yourself above God by encouraging the woman to have plastic surgery?

I look at your picture every day and your forehead is too high, your cheeks are too fat, your eyes are too small, and your mouth is crooked.

God made no rules as to what people are supposed to look like and neither should you. I look at my friends from the inside out. How about you?

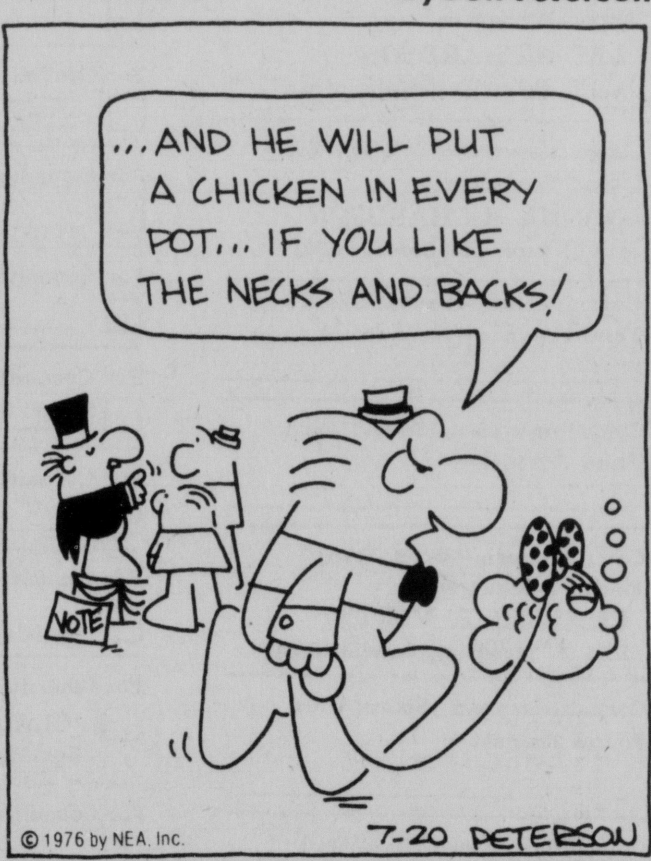

— Face To Face
Dear Face: Thanks for your sweet letter. I hope you will view me as a friend — even though my forehead is too high, my cheeks are too fat, my eyes are too small, and my mouth is crooked.

CONFIDENTIAL to Ready to Flip: You are bisexual. Counseling WOULD help you adjust and understand your problem.
